

Life asleep under the ermine coat offers to the cristalline air echos scattered away

on the snow field sowed with crows where drops anchor the night flooding the horizon

Under the shroud and vermine the yearning soul cries in echos
scattered away

on the blank page sowed with full stops where the inkwell overturms like the horizon