

Her dangling arm
abandoned to the wind
like a liana

gently beats
to the rhythm of her steps

The trees around us
stare like musicians
in an orchestra
at the divine pendulum

I want to reach
and hold you hand
but who am I
to interrupt such a symphony?