

Her dangling arms
abandoned to the wind
like lianas

gently beat
to the rhythm of her steps

The choir of trees
around us
murmurs while staring
at the divine pendulums

waiting for a sign

Look

You did not see the wild deer
and its deep chest
where darkly drums
an untamed song