What a waste I tell myself

This whole bread stale which you forgot at the back of the cupboard

I remember the loaf warm and tender like a promise of young love and

— Let's make French toasts! you say